Dr. Milton A. Gordon

As graduating students you have worked long and hard for this moment. You have striven for the best you could be and you have labored for knowledge and opened your minds to new ideas. You have done all of this and you have succeeded in completing your degree programs and are now ready to make your mark in your respective professions as well as meet your responsibilities to our society. We hope that your graduation from Cal State Fullerton will be the beginning of lives that are productive and satisfying for you. We are proud of you and your accomplishments as Cal State Fullerton's newest alumni and we are also proud that Cal State Fullerton continues to be the university where learning is preeminent.

Your graduation denotes not severance from the university but your union with it. Commencement does not mean the breaking of ties and the beginning of life apart. Rather it marks your initiation in the fullest sense into the fellowship of Cal State Fullerton as bearers of its torch, as centers of its influence, as promoters of its spirit. Wherever you go, Cal State Fullerton goes with you. We wish you luck, success and much happiness to you in all your future endeavors.

President's Scholars

President Gordon and University Honors Program Director Frank Cummings (left) at the President's Scholars Luncheon. The President Scholar's Program recognizes the outstanding achievements of a select group of students each year. Based solely on merit, this scholarship program recognizes incoming freshmen who have demonstrated excellence in academic achievement, leadership ability and community service. Students are automatically admitted to the University Honors Program, receive campus registration and housing priorities and participate in many special seminars, social, cultural and athletic events and receive letters of recommendation from the president of the university. This program promotes the tradition of Cal State University, Fullerton's commitment to excellence.

THE STAGE SIZZLES

The student cast treated the honorees, special guest, Tony Bennett and an audience of CSUF alumni and supporters to a spectacular show.

CSUF Alumna Dana Muller, Class of '96, (below) a member of the Broadway cast of Les Miserables was a featured performer.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES

Debbie Allen kept the evening moving along and even joined the performers on stage to dance a number that she had choreographed. She told the audience 'the reason I've been able to go forward in life is because of my education.'

FRONT & CENTER

Tony Bennett headlined the Front and Center annual gala at the Arrowhead Pond of Anaheim February 5, 2000. A student cast of 24 theatre and dance majors hit the stage to start off the evening. Front and Center is staged by a 66-member Blue Ribbon Organizing Committee of community and civic leaders, as well as CSUF administrators. The evening paid tribute to actor John Lithgow and his wife Mary, a

UCLA professor, and Orange County Couple of the Year Patti and Jim Edwards of Edwards Theatres Circuit, Inc. The optional black tie event raises funds for student scholarships. President Gordon greeted the audience, characterizing the evening as 'the single greatest gathering of our donors, trustees, alumni, parents and other supporters of Cal State Fullerton.'

AWESOME, AMAZING, AUDACIOUS

The award-winning Program of Theatre has distinguished itself on a regional and national basis and is at the forefront of theatre education with the CSU system and throughout the nation. The department engages in the rigorous recruitment of top-notch faculty, provides challenging classroom and production experiences and promotes outreach activities to the community that have been hailed by professional adjudicators, government officials, corporate granting agencies, media, alumni and the students themselves.

The Department of Theatre and Dance encourages ensemble collaboration among students and faculty and creates a stimulating, vital and exciting environment for artistic achievement. This year CSUF's production of the experimental theatre piece Deviant Craft directed by MFA Directing Candidate, Terry Walcutt, was recognized by the Orange County Weekly as the College Production of the Year.

Holly Jeanne portrayed Dotty in W. David Hancock's Deviant Craft. News organizations called the theatre to verify if real inmates were performing The Tempest as part of a drama therapy exercise, which is the premise behind the play.

Six Degrees of Separation recreated an incident reported in the New York Times of a young man passing himself off as the son of Sidney Poitier. Scott Johnson is being directed by Dean Hess.

The Fall season opened with Once in a Lifetime by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart. Writer Lawrence Vail played by Matt Sullivan consults with studio receptionist Miss Leighton, Molly Prather.

Graceful Moves

The Fall Dance Theatre program included Takisha Washington (above) in an original piece by Kara Cross and Noelle Horne (right) in Barbara Arms' Reunion. Carmel Cheney is below.

The Fall Dance Theatre allows faculty, student and alumni choreographers to stretch their imaginations and create new dances. Student dancers from the Department of Theatre and Dance audition, rehearse and perform these original pieces which include ballet, tap, modern, jazz, tribal and other styles of dance. Many choreographers also use other students of the arts to create original music, design sets and costumes or to accompany the projects.

In April 1992, Titan baseball moved into the then-new Sports Complex. With permanent facilities of their own, the baseball team endeavored to win yet another national championship in 1995--the third for the mighty Titans. However, the stadium only held seating for 1,400 fans--too small to host a NCAA post-season game and give the Titans a home field advantage.

Fundraising efforts gained momentum in late 1999 when longtime university supporters Jerry and Marilyn Goodwin made a gift of $1million to fund an expanded stadium project. As major contributors to Titan Athletics for more than 20 years, the Goodwins have helped shape Cal State Fullerton's outstanding intercollegiate athletics program. As the former owners of Goodwin Honda, their generous donations of cars, funds and other support to Titan teams enabled the athletic program to grow and prosper. Because of Jerry's enormous commitment to Cal State Fullerton, which includes the annual sponsorship of the Jerry Goodwin Cal State Fullerton Alumni Association Golf Tournament, he was honored as the university's first ever Honorary Alumnus in 1995.

Newly named Goodwin Field was a grand slam for Cal State Fullerton. The baseball team rose to the NCAA regional playoff level and hosted, for the first time in university history, the NCAA Regional Playoffs during the last weekend in May 2000.

Titan Dance Team Claims National Championship

At January's 2000 College Cheerleading and Dance Team National Championship, the Cal State Fullerton Dance Team captured the Division 1 dance team title. The competition was held Jan. 8-9 at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Florida, and was sponsored by the Universal Cheerleaders Association and Universal Dance Association. The director and co-coach of the 13-member squad is alumna Jennie Moreno (B.S. child development '97), now a third-grade teacher who was a member of the Titan cheerleading and dance teams during her undergraduate years. Alumna Sam Muller is the team's co-coach and advisor.

Spring 2000 Enrollment is the Largest in the University's History

For the first time in 25 years, Cal State Fullerton's spring enrollment surged beyond the fall count with a record-setting 27,263 students--up from 27,167.

The figures were tallied by the offices of Admissions and Records, and Analytical Studies and constitute the official census for spring 2000.

"This record enrollment is both a sign of the importance of the college degree and the value of what is offered here at Fullerton," said Dr. Ephraim P. Smith, vice president for academic affairs.

Cal State Fullerton, which has the fastest-growing enrollment in the 23-campus Cal State System, offers 99 degree programs and has four satellites in Orange County.

This growth trend--enrollment has been on the rise at CSUF since fall 1995--is reflected in the increasing numbers of students seeking admission to the university, noted Smith. "Applications have been, and continue to be, very strong at all levels and in all the colleges. Applications for this coming fall are very solid, particularly the freshman applications. We're up 11 percent over last year at this same time," he said.

Not since the 1974-75 academic year has spring enrollment eclipsed that of fall. That year, the fall tally was 20,051 and nudged up to 20,063 students the next semester.

Student growth this spring was seen at every class level--from freshman to senior--and in virtually every admission category of students. The tally of full-time-equivalent (FTE) students was 19,793. (one FTE equals 15 units of student course work and is the basis for establishing state funding for the university. While the spring FTE count is slightly lower than fall's 19,885, it is the highest recorded during a spring semester in the university's history.

OUT OF AN ORANGE GROVE A Campus Grew

From its birth four decades ago, the campus has found creative ways to make use of available facilities.

Prior to holding classes, administrators in early 1959 set up temporary headquarters on the second floor of a building at Fullerton Union High School. For the academic year 1959-1960, administrators leased six rooms at the new Sunny Hills High School, then moved administrative offices into Mahr House (now the George G. Golleher Alumni House).

In fall 1960, classes were held on campus in a compound of 12 "temporary" one-story bungalows. Many of these "temporary buildings" are still in use as the offices for public safety, design and construction, reprographic services, shipping and receiving, mail services, central and physical plant. The university's first building, Letters and Science Building (now Miles D. McCarthy Hall), was constructed in 1963.

Sorority

At Cal State Fullerton, sorority life was a mix of friendships, community service, leadership and learning. From fall rush in September to Greek Week in April, these women were involved in many university programs and events. In addition to local efforts to support national philanthropies like the Ronald McDonald House (Alpha Delta Pi) and gerontology and Alzheimer's Disease research (Sigma Kappa), members enjoy elegant socials, late night study sessions with friends and, of course, Girls Night Out!

The ladies of Alpha Chi Omega cheer their sisters and rivals during Greek Week, Cal State Fullerton's annual battle of the sororities and fraternities. In the last ten years, Greek Week has raised more than $130,000 for Camp Titan, a summer camp for underprivileged children.

American Student Association Studies

The ASSA publishes an annual journal of student works entitled The American Papers. A student board of editors screens and edits submissions, making an effort to produce a journal reflecting the range of student work done in the department. Some of this year's featured papers included "Eerie, Yet Fun: Unconventional Conventions in the X-Files" by Bradley Parsons and "The MP3 Phenomenon: Downloading American Values on the Internet" by Kele Douglas Perkins. The board of editors was Kristen Keefe, Amy Lefkowitz, Jonathan Menjivar, Trista O'Connell and Bradley Parsons.

In the beginning...

In 1957, Cal State Fullerton became the 12th State College in California to be authorized by the Legislature. The following year, a site was designated in northeast Fullerton. It was purchased in 1959, when Dr. William B. Langsdorf was appointed as founding president, the first staff was selected and plans for opening the new college were made. Orange County State College started classes for 452 full- and/or part-time students in September, 1959, using leased quarter for its administrative offices on the Fullerton Union High School campus and for its classrooms at Fullerton's Sunny Hills High School.

Communications Week 2000

Communications Week is a school-wide event designed to heighten the awareness of the scope of the College of Communications programs, spotlighting students, faculty, alumni and the field of communications. A student task force plans and staffs the week-long series of guest speakers, special events and networking opportunities, providing a living classroom experience for the more than 2,500 students who experience Comm Week each year. This year's event featured 75 guest professors and speakers, a Town Hall Meeting on the topic of "Child Abuse in the U.S.," a Tech Fair, a Career Fair and an E-Commerce Conference. Departmental clubs like the National Student Speech & Language Hearing Association, Public Relations Student Society of America, the CSUF Forensics Squad, the AdClub, the American Marketing Association and the TV/Film Society supplemented the schedule with individual programs and events throughout the week.

Greek Week unites fraternal brothers and sisters once a year to compete in sports, spirit and charity. Activities include volleyball, tug-o-war, softball, lip-sync, pyramid building and chariot races. Capping off the week is a canned food drive donated to a local food bank and fundraising by each house to benefit Camp Titan.

DANCE THEATRE

Student, faculty and alumni choreographers are given the unique opportunity to create original dance pieces each semester with the production of the Fall and Spring Dance Theatres. Under the coordination of Gladys Kares, choreographers assemble teams of dancers, costume designers, lighting designers and even live musicians to bring their creations to life. There are no limitations to their imagination. The dances may include ballet, jazz, swing, tap and more. Pictured to the right, Megan Grumble and Ryan Sander kick up their heels in a number choreographed by faculty member William Lett.

MAIN ART GALLERY

The gallery at CSUF serves as a major visual arts venue for Orange County and often features presentations of work from emerging contemporary artists. Integral to this program is the ability to provide space and physical assistance for artists to install environmental and ephemeral and transitory works. Exhibition Design students and Museum Studies graduate students have the unique opportunity to interact with artists while assisting with the construction of their works. The mission of the gallery program is to bring exhibitions that instruct, inspire and challenge.

College of Engineering and computer science

The College of Engineering and Computer Science continues to produce graduates who excel in their academic endeavors. Many of them have received awards, recognition and scholarships during their tenure at California State University, Fullerton. Graduate and undergraduate students published papers with their faculty advisors. Ten faculty-student teams were awarded research grants from Lockheed Martin as part of the Research Partnership Program between CSU and Lockheed Martin Company. In each department, undergraduate students won prizes in regional student professional paper and design competitions. Student clubs have participated and won prizes in contests. One of our senior project design teams designed, fabricated and tested a mini-Baja vehicle which was taken to Kansas, where it competed with vehicles from 72 other universities. Another team designed and constructed a concrete canoe that was entered in a national competition. Our students and faculty continue together to uphold our tradition of excellence.

Feedback from other universities and industry tells us that our graduates excel at being able to contribute immediately in the workplace. This is a reputation that precedes the students and we, as a college, are proud to have that recognition of our programs.

NAKED EGG DROP

Future engineers are welcomed to Cal State Fullerton for a day of events and competitions at the Mathematical, Engineering Science Achievement (MESA) regional competition. Faculty, staff and students from the College of Engineering assist throughout the day. Competitions include the egg drop, in which student engineers design a protective package for eggs that are dropped from the roof of a six-story campus building. In a twist of the egg drop, the "naked" egg drop involves dropping an unprotected egg into a student-designed cushioned container. Other competitions involve on the spot building of paper towers, mousetrap-powered cars, wind-powered sail cars and a science contest.

WOMEN'S STUDIES MAJOR

A new bachelor of arts degree program in women's studies was introduced this spring at Cal State Fullerton. The new program is an excellent opportunity for students, not only because it talks about issues that are important to women and men, but also areas of public policy, socialization and philosophy. The highlight of the program is that it is interdisciplinary in nature. The women's studies curriculum incorporates the use of technology by having students create a Web page and using the Internet for research. A six-unit capstone course provides students with the opportunity to apply theory and substantive content to real-world experiences and community-service learning. Spanning and integrating the humanities, social sciences, arts and professions, women's studies is a wonderful addition to the offerings of the College of Humanities and Social Sciences.

OUTSTANDING UNIVERSITY MENTOR

A mentor to both faculty and students, Dr. Benjamin J. Hubbard, professor of comparative religion is this year's recipient of the John Cronquist Memorial Award for Outstanding University Mentor. His wish is that every faculty and staff member at CSUF would have a student mentee. With Dr. Craig K. Ihara, professor of philosophy, Hubbard co-founded the Creative Teaching Newsletter to emphasize teaching, learning, mentoring and guidance to faculty seeking innovation in teaching.

EDUCATOR OF THE YEAR

The Hispanic Bar Association of Orange County has named Dr. Isacc Cardena, chair and professor of Chicano studies at Cal State Fullerton, "Educator of the Year." Dr. Cardena accepted his award noting that it is also a reflection of the significant contribution Cal State Fullerton is making to the Latino community. He is active both on and off campus with organizations like the National Conference for Community and Justice and the Association for Mexican American Educators. He is currently faculty coordinator for Proyecto VECINO, a program that involves university students in community service learning to increase literacy.

Patience and observation are skills that will come in handy in the Criminal Justice field.
